FASHIONS FOR FEBRUARY.

LADIES.

Evening or full dress—A purple velvet round robe, with demi train & long sleeves, bordered round the bottom, bosom, and wrists with narrow gold lace. A Spanish hat, composed of purple silk of velvet, the same as the robe, looped up in front with brilliants, and ornamented with curled ostrich feathers. A capuchin cloak of white satin, trimmed entirely round with full swansdown. Diamond chain and cross; drop ear-rings and bracelets of the same; gold chain and opera glass. Grecian slippers of white satin, trimmed with silver.

Opera Dress.—A round robe of white or colored crape, imperial net, or muslin, with white satin bodice, trimmed with gold or silver, or a border of small flowers. A wrapping mantle of fawn colored satin, trimmed entirely round with swansdown.—Necklace, ear-rings, and bracelets of pearl. Hair in dishevelled curls, confined with a diamond comb, and ornamented with a Persian wreath of blended pearl and amethysts. Slippers of fawn colored satin, with silver clasps. Opera fan of carved amber.

GENTLEMEN.

Great coats.—Great coats are in general worn of olive, olive brown, or dark green superfine cloth, or superfine bath coating; single breasted, with three or four straps in the front; cross flaps, and the pockets outside, under the latter; a small flap in the plaits, pointed with three buttons;—round cuffs; the collar to come up high in the neck, and padded; the fall-down collar only an inch and a half deep. The waist is worn long, three inches below the hip bone, and the skirts must reach to the bottom of the calf.

Some fashionables have fur cuffs, collar, and lappels to their great coats, with a standing collar faced with fur inside, so as to turn back, to form a fall-down collar.—The leaders of the haut ton appear at the opera in the great-coats edged with Russia lamb skin, with cuffs, collar, and lappels of the same, and loops in the front, made after the Polish fashion, and lined throughout with silk serge.

MORNING COATS.—The most fashionable colors for morning coats are olive, or olive brown, and blue. Like the preceding, they are long waisted, but must not be longer than two or three inches above the knee, according to the size of the wearer. The lappels come down very low, that is to say, to the hip button; pockets outside, under the cross flaps; small (or habit size) plain gilt buttons; five holes in the lappels to button all the way up; French riding sleeve, with three large buttons; the collar to come up high, the fall down an inch and a quarter deep, according to the height of the collar.

WAISTCOATS.—The prevailing colors for waistcoats are white, India rib patent green print, (buff,) with white or black stripes, wide asunder. They are bound with black or blue silk galloon, double-breasted, with five or six holes, according to the length, to button all the way up.

PANTALOONS—are of blue or drab colored stocking, figured. For breeches drab colors are in the highest request; they are made to come down low under the knee.

From the Connecticut Mirror.

SCIENCE OF DRAINING MONEY FROM THE TREASURY.

It is one sort of operation, to dam out sixteen millions of revenue, by embargo and non-intercourse.

It is another sort, to drain of seventeen hundred thousand dollars for gun boats, and then to establish a further drain of sixty thousand dollars per annum, so as to have the gun boats go through the process of rotting in legalized fashion, by way of proving the executive profundity of wisdom—to drain off some millions for recruiting an additional army, and furnishing uniform clothing not fit for service, and keeping up the estimates for pay and subsistence, while the troops are fixed in a pestilential encampment, so as to deplete the treasury by means of the horrible waste of human life.

Who will deny matters so notorious at home?

Meantime, as executive patronage has been diffused in ramifications, the management of employments abroad, has operated to draw off monies in various rills and streams from the treasury. Witness the disbursements for the two descriptions of foreign intercourse, that are distinguished as diplomatic or consular. Both are within the superintendance of the department of state. Accounts of both are made chargeable for regulated allowances, and for contingent expences.

The department of state, however, is not the only department, whose field of contingencies has been made broad enough, to admit various irregularities in expenditure, and such as might favor specious disguises, and cover abuses, to be expected from want of responsible system, or want of capacity, or want of honesty. Under the larger appropriations for contingent expences, there are in general more facilities for covering from the public eye, the particulars of monies that may be lost to the public by ignorance, or negligence, or mismanagement.

Although the increase of such facilities in any of the departments, may be arranged as tending to encourage the impostures of pretended patriotism, the contingencies within the province of the department of state afford peculiar opportunities for pecuniary indulgencies to favorites, whether officers or agents, inmates or messengers. While appropriations for contingent expences of intercourse, may cover the application of monies for secret service, they may also cover incidental allowances, for perquisites of favoritism.

In attending to foreign intercourse, it is to be remembered, that the charges for regular disbursements, and contingencies, on account of public ministers and secretaries, employed in Europe and South America, with allowances for conveying communications, whether styled official or private, and various incidental particulars, have relation to the diplomatic service; and they form one large branch of the expenditure. The charges relative to consular agencies, in various parts of the world form another.

Among these, the charges relative to some of the consulates in the north of Africa, are observable for multiplicity and enormity. Within less than five years, that is to say, from the 4th of June, 1805, to the end of the year 1809, the monies disbursed from the treasury of the U. States for expences of intercourse with the Barbary powers, amounted to more than six hundred thousand dollars (the precise amount being 618,799 dollars and 56 cents) and of those monies, more than three hundred and thirty thousand dollars, were paid to the consul general, whose accounts remain unsettled.

So much appears by a report from the treasury department, transmitted to the senate of the U. States on the 22d of January, 1810, in compliance with a resolution of that body. From the same official source it appears, among other things, that the end of the year 1808, is the latest period, for which any accounts have been received at the treasury from the consul general, And the transcripts of his accounts to that time, as remaining unsettled at the treasury, betoken divers curious and cunning matters, in relation to the monies of the U. States.

Cast an eye over the series of items charged in such accounts, as have been exhibited by the American consul general in Barbary. He is the person who negociated the treaty with Tripoli in June 1805, by which the piratical usurper of that regency, was to receive money from the U. States, for agreeing to terms of peace, notwithstanding all the heroic atchievements under commodore Preble, and Gen. Eaton. He was appointed by president Jefferson, and has a salary fixed by law, at a rate not exceeding four thousand dollars annually.

Rents for consular house and for consular country house, wages and gifts to consular Turk guard, repairs for consular houses in town and country, gifts to servants on taking coffee with their masters, presents to the Dey and, to the Casmagee, and the Aga, and the Hogia, and the Casnader, and the Viteheltradge, and the port admiral, & the port captain, with allowances for sub-management, and brokerage, and ditto for auxiliary services of persons neither named nor described, fees and gifts on days of Ramadan and Biram, gifts to choux, and to drogermen and slaves, consular garden, entertainments, and secretaryship, force and artifice, avarice and profusion, splendor and meanness, soap for washing and meserolles of wine, the bagnio and the hospital, clerk hire, and cost of exchange with commissions and guesanes, bottles rum, with lemons, eggs, milk, coachman and the barber—salutes to armed vessels of the United States, and white washings, poor Jews and Bacri and Busnah, ready cash, caftans and caps, essence of jessamine and stationary, watches in variety, skins of dates, fine-bu-nosses, shawls, diamonds rings—all appear as auxiliary, in the science of draining money from the treasury, a la Jefferson.

And here be it noted that the charges for diplomatic or consular contingencies, upon being admitted by the secretary of state, with the sanction of the president of the U. States, are generally allowed of course by the accounting officers of the treasury.—Such charges therefore differ from other matters of account, inasmuch as the president and the secretary of state may give the rule for allowing or rejecting them in the treasury department.

Shall we now attend to some of the particulars charged in account by Tobias Lear, as consul general of the United States at Algiers? Passing such charges as $ 152, on the 21st of June, 1805, for two salutes given to the United States' frigate Constitution in Tripoli, and $ 150 for a flag staff, put up in 1807, and $ 46 for a flag for the consular garden in 1808, and the round charges of $ 120 for giving entertainment on the 4th of July, in each of the years 1804, and 1806, and 1807, and 1808, we will look at items that are charged, as being for gifts or presents openly made, or for gratifications in matters of secrecy.

From the Federal Republican.

"In the year 1806, says Mr. Goldsmith, the American minister, Mr. Munroe, arrived in London, to conclude a treaty of commerce, jointly with Mr. Pinkney, minister of the United States at the court of St. James. As soon as Bonaparte was informed of it, he had a fit of rage, and he declared, that if the American government dared to conclude a treaty with Great Britain, he would immediately consider America as an enemy, and declare war against her. This menace prevented the ratification of the treaty, which had been already signed at London."

Such at this time was the impartiality and the independence of the American government! Bonaparte wished to prove that he would go on in earnest. He then issued his famous Berlin decree of the 21st of November, 1806, by which he placed the British Islands in a state of blockade, and among other regulations worthy of Robespierre, declared that every individual, being a subject of Great-Britain, should be made a prisoner of war, wheresoever found. An article of his decree ordered, that all letters written in English, should be detained.

"In consequence of this decree, all the clerks of the post-office were required to stop letters addressed to persons having English names. Two American merchants then residing at Paris, waited upon the administrator-general of the post-offices, the Count La Valette, counsellor of state.—They remonstrated to him upon the rigor, which was exercised by this decree upon the Americans, and they stated to him, that as English names & American names were absolutely alike, it would be impossible to distinguish them. They therefore asked him what they were to do with their correspondence, when they were forbidden to write in English? The counsellor of state answered, "correspond in your own language." This administrator did not know that the Americans spoke nothing but English. This will not be surprising, when it is known, that the Count La Valette was formerly a boy who sold Lemonade, then a soldier, then a general, &c."

The first case, which presented itself to try the force of the Berlin decree and the nature of the modification announced by Decree, was the case of the American ship Horizon, freighted by the Spanish government to carry a cargo to Lima, and bring back the returns to Spain. Upon the faith of the assurance given by Decree, this vessel sailed from London, with a valuable cargo; but a tempest cast her upon the shores of France, where she was provisionally seized by the custom house. The case having been sent to the council of prizes for its decision, the owners employed a very eminent advocate of the council M. de la Grange, accustomed to plead and to lose all kind of causes. Notwithstanding, he exhibited the charter party between the captain and the Spanish government, the friend and ally of France, and moreover in a state of war with great Britain, the vessel was richly loaded and was condemned. When the letter of the minister was cited at the council of prizes, the answer proves the servility of its members, and how little foreign ministers ought to give credit to the official declarations of a French minister; it was said, that the minister of marine had exceeded his authority, when he took upon himself to write such a letter and that a ministerial letter could in no case invalidate an imperial decree.

The supercargo, Mr. M'Clure, brother of the owner of the vessel, was arrested and committed to jail, in the capital of a country, the most enlightened of the world, because he was suspected of being an Englishman, the greatest crime of which a man can be accused in France, especially if he be a democrat.

Mr. M'Clure succeeded not without difficulty, in being put under guard, until he proved, not that he was naturalized an American citizen, but that he was well and duly born in America.

COAN LAND for sale.

SIX hundred and six acres of valuable low grounds, a great proportion of which is mixed with oyster shells, situated upon the banks of Coan river, in the county of Northumberland, late the property of S. Ball, Esquire, and is equally distant from Baltimore, Norfolk and Alexandria.

COAN abounds in fine fish, oysters, and wild fowl of every description in their respective season—and the estate is a very desirable one. But a small part of the purchase money will be required to be paid at the time of purchase. For further particulars enquiries may be addressed to the subscriber, who requests that the postage on such letters may be paid.

Dentequid horridius nigro, quid pulchrius albo?

DOCTOR B. FENDALL,
Regular bred Surgeon Dentist,

AND who has been in practice for near THIRTY YEARS, has just arrived in Alexandria, and may be seen and consulted at Brook's tavern, at any time during his continuance in it. The earlier applications are made to the Doctor by those who feel disposed to employ him as a Dentist the better, as his continuance in Alexandria is very uncertain. Those ladies and gentlemen, in Alexandria, who find it inconvenient to wait on the Doctor, he will readily attend, on the shortest notice.

Dr. Fendall cures the scurvy in the gums, be it ever so inveterate, in a short time, twenty four hours at farthest; fastens loose teeth by making the gums grow up to them, renders the teeth white and beautiful; prevents their decay; keeps such as are so from becoming worse, even to old age; fills up those that are hollow with gold, with foil or lead which will not only render them useful, but prevent their aching and further decay; extracts teeth and stumps with ease; makes and fixes artificial teeth. His Columbian Antiscorbutic Dentifrice, for preserving the teeth, gums, sockets, &c. and superior he thinks, both in elegance and efficacy to any other, is still sold by the doctor.

SATURDAY, APRIL 28.

Important Notice—Of the renewal of danger to the American trade, going towards Cadiz, which is but the commencement of a dangerous system of privateering that will be carried on from the ports in that quarter, occupied by the French.

Cadiz, Feb. 26. By a small vessel just come in here from Tangier, we learn that a French privateer was in that harbor just ready to set sail. She was calculated to sail very fast, having just got a fresh tallow bottom and only one gun.

"There were twenty French officers of different ranks on board said privateer, which its seems were to be landed at Conie, a small place on the coast between Cadiz and Cape Trafalgar."

Bonaparte has recently permitted the exportation of produce from his dominions in licensed vessels. In consequence large quantities of wheat have been sent to England. While this artful chief persuades our government to cut up our profitable commerce with England, he takes advantage of the scarcity thence occurring, opens his own ports and pockets that money that might otherwise have come into our farmers pockets. Will our rulers never see his designs; or seeing them, do they prefer his interest to that of their own country.

(Trenton Federalist.

According to the last accounts from Europe Bonaparte was extending his forces towards the Danish frontier, where is a large quantity of American produce, recently sent into Tonningen!!! Should he seize it the democrats will tell us that he is justifiable in so doing inasmuch as it was sent there in defiance of his laws to break up the commerce of the world.

(Ibid.)

Captain Maxwell, arrived at Norfolk on Saturday last from Lisbon, furnishes the following intelligence:

On the 7th February 3000 English troops were embarked at Lisbon and sent round to Cadiz for the defence of that place, where 4000 troops from Gibraltar had already arrived. The French army was said to have been before the walls of Cadiz, but in what force was not known at Lisbon. On the 6th, a Portuguese regiment, consisting of 1200 men embarked on board of English transports, which likewise sailed for Cadiz; the governor of which place was stated to have been killed by the mob for refusing to join the British forces for the defence of the city; the Spanish admiral was also said to have shared the same fate for refusing to give up the fleet to the British, which was done, however, and the whole of them, both French and Spanish, were sent to Malta, for which place a Spanish 74 gun ship sailed with a load of church plate. On the 10th February, sir James Stewart, the British minister, arrived at Lisbon from England, vice Mr. Villiars, recalled. On the 11th the Clyde frigate arrived at Lisbon in 5 days from Plymouth, with advice of 10,000 troops having embarked for Lisbon at the time of her sailing. The marquis of Wellesley's speech states it to be his majesty's intention to defend Portugal with the whole of the disposable force of England, & 30,000 troops would be sent off with all possible dispatch. The whole of the English army in Portugal, independent of the reinforcement sent to Cadiz was 28,000, the Portuguese army 70,000, forty thousand of which were in the pay of England. On the 17th a courier arrived from Badajoz, with intelligence of the French having appeared before that place to the amount of 2,000 or 2,500 men, but that they retired immediately on the garrison marching out to meet them. The Clyde brought out half a million of dollars for the use of the army in Portugal, and half a million more was brought in the sloop of war in which the British minister came out.

NOVEL CONFESSIONS.

"It must be confessed, that the exertions required by the continental war, have caused many springs to be relaxed."

[Paris Moniteur.

Thus, the more he conquers, the weaker he is.

"It is however probable, that the war expenditures for the last year cannot be under 640 millions livres (about 120 millions) of which sum only 350 millions are chargeable upon the public treasury.

[Report of Minister of Finance for 1809.

Thus the half, or about 65 millions dollars, have been plundered from Bonapate's allies' &c. &c.

"Your commerce would reap no benefit from a war with the United States, and from that moment you (England) are deaf to every insult."

[Moniteur.

Thus it is admitted and declared by the French, that we insulted England, not England insulted us, through Mr. Jackson.

"His Majesty could not but attend to the proceedings of the United States, who, without making any complaint of France, comprized her in their acts of exclusion."

[Cadore to Armstrong.

Thus it is declared we tacitly submitted to French aggression, and that the hostilities of France are directed against us and not in retaliation against England, under the the pretext, that we had seized French ships' &c. It is now evident, that a late decree to permit the importation of dollars into France, and the exportation of grain, wine and gewgaws, was not intended for us, and that Bonaparte would as soon or sooner, admit the English than the Americans to trade to France, whilst we pretend to be free.

"The King of Holland was divided between his most imprescriptible duties;——His duties to the Imperial Throne, and the mercantile notions of the Dutch nation."

[Cadore to Roell.

Thus France governs in the name of the brothers of Bonaparte, wherever they have affected to set up Thrones.

"The Dutch nation, far from imitating the patriotism of the Americans, have been guided in all their transactions solely by miserable mercantile considerations."

[Cadore to Roell.

Thus are the embargo, non intercourse, &c. declared to be sacrifices of mercantile considerations to Bonaparte's views, and approbated by him accordingly.

"The first duty of every Frenchman, in whatever situation destiny may place him, is towards his country.

[Decree against Holland.

Thus are Frenchmen forbid, to expatriate themselves, and if they do, told not to cherish, or be faithful to the country they have chosen.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, April 26.

[CONCLUDED.]

[Taken for the Alexandria Gazette.]

The question recurred on the amendment proposed by Mr. Smilie, and after a long debate the question was taken and lost.

Mr. Mumford moved to postpone the whole subject indefinitely. The question on this motion was taken and lost—ayes 42, noes 57.

FRIDAY, April 27.

Mr. Newton from the committee appointed to enquire into the cause or causes of the great mortality in that detachment of the army of the United States, ordered for New Orleans, made a report. This report is very long and is accompanied with a number of depositions from various persons. The report with the depositions were read and ordered to be printed.

A Message from the president was received, covering a statement from the secretary of state, relative to consuls in foreign countries, made in compliance with a call of the house of the 23d instant. Ordered to be printed.

On motion of Mr. Johnson, the unfinished business of yesterday was laid on the table.

The bill confirming the decisions of the land commissioners in the district of Kaskaskies, was read a third time and passed.

The bill extending the time of payment for public lands in certain cases was read a third time.

NEW YORK, April 26.

Latest from France.—Yesterday afternoon arrived here, down sound, the French schr. Ant, capt. Revet, 30 days from Bordeaux, with wine, brandy, &c. bound to Bourbon, put in here with both masts sprang. She sailed on the 25th of March, at which time, the American vessels in the ports of France, and at St. Sebastians, still remained under sequestration. The mate of the vessel informed us that several of our vessels have been condemned at St. Sebastians.—— The supercargo however, with whom we have since conversed says he did not hear of any condemnations. He also says, provided we make a good treaty with England, there will be no difficulty with France. [That is, we suppose, such a treaty as is agreeable to Bony.]—— This gentleman also says that it was understood that the John Adams frigate was detained in England for Mr. Pinkney's despatches.——This cannot be correct, for we have an account by the Juno of the despatches having been sent on board, and of the frigates sailing for Havre on the 12th of March. He also informs, that 300,000 French troops had been sent to Spain; but that 100,000 of them had been ordered back. About 20,000 troops were at Bordeaux, quartered on the inhabitants. Bonaparte was to be married on the 25th of March. About four days before he sailed, he heard that a U. States vessel had arrived at St. Sebastians, with news of the probable renewal of the non-intercourse, which gave apparent satisfaction. [We never heard of the sailing of such a vessel.] The ship George Dyer, Cochran, was to sail from Bordeaux about the first of April for Baltimore as a cartel, with passengers. Another vessel for Baltimore, was to sail about the same time with passengers for Rochelle. The capture of Guadaloupe, and the arrival of the French troops opposite Cadiz, was known at Bordeaux.

AN

THE BIRTH OF WASHINGTON,

DELIVERED BEFORE THE WASHINGTON SOCIETY OF ALEXANDRIA,

BY

ROBERT GOODLOE HARPER, ESQ.

ONE OF ITS MEMBERS,

ON THE

22d FEBRUARY, 1810,

AND PUBLISHED BY ITS ORDER.

FOR SALE,

At the town of OCCOQUAN, on the 26th day of May next, at Public Auction,

That valuable MILL SEAT,

late the property of Elisha Janney,

SITUATE in the said town of Occoquan. On this seite was erected, about eleven years ago, a spacious three story BRICK MILL HOUSE, which ever since has been occupied as a manufacturing mill, until about twelve months ago it was destroyed by fire—the stones and bricks of the former walls, and the iron work of the building are upon the spot, and would answer for a new mill, which might with these aids, be erected in time to grind the growing crop of wheat.

The advantages appertaining to this valuable property, which in the driest season never wants water, being furnished by the Occoquan river, are so generally known as not to need a particular enumeration; suffice it to state, that it is situated in a healthy and flourishing little town at the Falls of the river, about 16 miles south of Alexandria, on the great stage road, leading north and south—in the heart of a wheat country—and has navigable water to the mill door, whose vessels may come of sufficient burthen to carry 500 barrels of flour. With this valuable seat for water works of any description, there may be had about 250 acres of well timbered land, lying on the opposite side of the river.

For this property one-fourth of the purchase money will be required in hand, and the residue in three equal annual payments, with interest from the day of sale.

Trustee for Creditors of Mr. Janney.

A NOVEL.

By GEORGE WATTERSTON, Esq.
Of Washington City,
Author of the Lawyer and Child of Feeling.

"The celebrity of this author's "LAWYER," and "CHILD OF FEELING," induced the publishers to engage in this work, and without detracting from the merits of the former, feel themselves justified in stating that his GLENCARN is superior to either. It is submitted without further recommendation, with a wish, that the American readers may give further encouragement to this young gentleman's endeavors to entertain, instruct and moralize his fellow citizens, in a way seemingly well calculated to attract their attention.
